Dear both,

This is my response on behalf of the OSS.

This is a popular route for walkers and cyclists. You have my personal evidence form which says what I individually do

I also lead groups of cyclists along the route across the bridges and then west on a regular basis. For many cyclists this is a pleasant diversion from the main road.

I note that there is a large car park which is provided for people walking from this point and which is heavily used, particularly at weekends. Although a few of them go east, the overwhelming majority of them use at least part of the application route. Many turn off upstream before completing the route, but others will walk across both bridges and either straight ahead or left.

This must be one of the best used routes in this part of Sussex.

Best wishes
